

GEOVERT

Construction Management/Engineering Internship

Geovert is a leading Geotechnical Construction company specializing in innovative difficult access solutions and ground based geotechnical construction civil engineering projects and environmental remediation works. Geovert was initially established in Christchurch, New Zealand 20 years ago, and due to Geovert's success the demand for our services has expanded the company to have offices in Australia, Singapore, Indonesia and now the USA.

We are looking for self-motivated US employees with an interest in geotechnical construction and geohazard mitigation. This role will be responsible for assisting the Project Manager, Superintendent, Project Engineer(s), and all other construction staff in various areas of the project. Construction Management/Engineering Intern will have the opportunity to apply education to a professional setting, while gaining valuable experience and skills. This is a 'hands on' construction role, candidates are expected to work alongside our other field and site professionals and assist in all aspects of the construction process.

Specific areas may include tracking and assistance with RFI's; processing change orders; general project layout assistance relating to engineering plans and specs; and assisting with the project close-out process. Responsibilities include:

- Assistance with evaluation of field conditions and anchor acceptance testing
- Evaluate foundation and ground conditions, support quality assurance and quality control engineering materials testing
- Review project drawings and coordinate any design changes
- Provide document control assistance for correspondence and submittals.
- Assist with preparing and updating project schedule and interact with all involved in scheduling decision processes
- Manage subcontractors field operations and verify contract payments
- Provide design assistance to the project engineer for the design of temporary structures
- Respond to field for design clarification
- Execute duties and responsibilities as needed

If this seems like the challenge you are looking for and you have the relevant experience, please email your resume or any questions to amy.neale@geovert.com. USA residence only. Long term employment potential for the right candidate.
